4:00pm-4:30pm

Welcome to NSEE – Paul Kwant, NSEE President
Room: Regency AB

4:30pm-6:00pm

Keynote Speaker – Imran Khan

Understanding that structural oppression has worked to diminish the intrinsic motivation and skills of students, Imran is re-invigorating it through experiential development. The goal is to tackle the isolation & segregation facilitated by the public-school system, and to break down the walls that separate the classroom from the city.

Our work is showing that this isolation is one of the key facts in the achievement gap and that experiences are fundamental to educational success for low income students. Embarc believes that experiences should not be relegated to those who can attend after school programs or extracurricular activities, but rather that they should simply be part of the educational lexicon and fundamental to our theory of education just like math, science, or reading is.
