

Join a Global Community of Experiential Educators

For more than 50 years, SEE's membership has been a vibrant, global community of researchers, practitioners, and thought leaders who are committed to improving education in schools, postsecondary institutions, businesses, and community-based organizations.

Membership Benefits

SEE provides professional development, research, programming, and access to a global community of individuals, organizations, and institutions united in cultivating educators to use experiential education effectively as an integral part of their personal, professional, civic, and global learning.

- Professional Development: Gain access to state-of-the-art ideas, practices, and innovations through the National Conference, Regional Workshops, the Experiential Education Academy, and more.

- Research: Explore information and referrals about research, theory, and high-quality programming through SEE's online and in-person resources and contribute to the field via the journal Experiential Learning & Teaching in Higher Education.

- Programming: Launch or strengthen experience-based learning programs through access to events, webinars, newsletters, and publications.

- Community: Engage with SEE's global community that fosters valuable relationship building among diverse practitioners through online forums, membership events, and opportunities to lead within the organization. Plus, if you are the experiential education decision-maker on your college or university campus, join the Experiential Education Campus Leadership Network to discover a community of peers with whom to share ideas, challenges, and inspiration.

Consider Adding Network Membership

SEE is proud to announce a new membership feature - the Experiential Education Campus Leadership Network. Professionals who lead or coordinate experiential education for their college/university campus are often "alone" in their work. They are without obvious peers on their campuses and would benefit from a network of peers who are doing comparable work and facing similar challenges. SEE aims to fill that gap by creating the Experiential Education Campus Leadership Network. This is an optional special interest group that can be added to SEE membership.

2023 will be the inaugural year for the Network, and it provides exciting opportunities not only to connect with peers at other campuses, but also to shape the future direction of the Network. Join us!

Experiential Education Campus Leaders Network

For SEE members (regardless of membership type) who are the primary leader/decision-maker for experiential education at their campus.
